Guinea undertook preparations for the Diagnostic Trade Integration Study \(DTIS\) [1] in 2002. The DTIS and Action Matrix were completed and validated by the Government in December 2003. The DTIS Action Matrix recommendations led to the creation of three Integrated Framework (IF) Window II projects. These included: enhancing of capacities for an effective participation of Guinea in multilateral trade negotiations implemented by UNCTAD; development and export promotion of Guinea's agricultural products, targeting pineapple and chilli producers; and enhancing Guinea's export development institutions, implemented by ITC.

The DTIS Action Matrix recommendations were also incorporated into the second Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper \(PRSP II\) [2] in the pillar dealing with accelerating growth. In December 2006, Guinea presented a revised version of the DTIS Action Matrix.

Main Projects Ongoing

Description of the projects (objectives and interventions):

Under the EIF, Guinea is implementing its Tier 1 'Support to National Implementation Arrangements (NIAs)' project that was approved by the EIF Board in October 2011. The Tier 1 project seeks to strengthen the Ministry of Trade's institutional and human resources capacity, including the NIAs, to facilitate trade mainstreaming, coordinated delivery of Aid for Trade (Aft) and implementation of priority projects from the DTIS Action Matrix.

Guinea's DTIS Update (DTISU) was approved in March 2013 and is implemented by the World Bank. The objective of the DTISU is to review the recommendations of the 2003 DTIS towards effective implementation of trade policy reform. The DTISU will also support the implementation of the inclusive growth agenda under the PRSP III. As a result, trade policy reform is expected to contribute to sustainable growth and poverty alleviation through the strengthening of trade linkages between the domestic private sector and global supply chains, offering ultimately opportunities for economic diversification and efficient allocation of resources.

The mango value chain development project, Guinea's Tier 2 project was approved by the EIF Board in November 2013. The project aims to increase the revenue of actors in the sector, particularly small producers, through the improvement of the mango production environment and the commercialization of mango in Guinea; the strengthening of capacities of the actors and organizations in the sector as well as institutional capacities.

Main progresses to date:

Tier 1 project

The EIF National Implementation Unit (NIU) has been fully staffed with the NIU Coordinator being appointed in December 2011 and technical staff in March 2012. A capacity-building plan was formulated and training activities on key trade aspects have been implemented for stakeholders in Guinea, with a special focus on women.

The NIU staff has been trained in project management and evaluation, and they have also participated in the EIF regional workshop on results reporting and communication in Togo in March 2014.

Trade has been mainstreamed in the PRSP III finalized in February 2013, for the period 2013-2015. Regular consultations are being held between the NIU with development partners with the support of the EIF Donor Facilitator, the World Bank.

Outreach and communication activities on the EIF programme and AfT have been organized in the provinces of Guinea to identify project ideas and proposals. This resulted in the development of four project proposals on mango, pineapple, the modernization of the National Laboratory on Quality Control, and hides and skins to enhance the diversification and exports of quality agricultural products in the regional and international markets meeting international standards.

Tier 2 project

Guinea's Tier 2 project on mango value chain development was approved by the EIF Board in November 2013 and launched in May 2014 by the Prime Minister of Guinea. The project aims to improve the competitiveness of the mango sector, in particular the smaller producers, by reinforcing and strengthening the capacity of all actors involved in the mango value chain. This will be done through interventions in five districts in two of Guinea's regions: Kindia and Télimélé in "Basse Guinée" (in the Western regions of Guinea), and Kankan, Mandiana and Siguiri in "Haute Guinée" (in the Eastern regions of Guinea).

The project foresees capacity building along the entire mango value chain in the two regions. Over 85% of approximately 380,500 people living in the regions are reliant on mango production as their source of income. Of this percentage, a further 80% or 258,000 are women producers and harvesters who combine mango production with gardening and handcraft.

Outlook:

Guinea is working on finalizing Tier 2 project proposals on pineapple and modernizing the National Laboratory on Quality Control.

Resources mobilization activities are also expected to take place for the current portfolio of Tier 2 project proposals.
